

Glory of the Snow, Chionodoxa

Glory of the Snow (Chionodoxa) is an early bloomer with starry, lavender-blue flowers that shade to white in the center. An excellent naturalizer when planted in soil that drains well, it is suited to growing in garden beds, lawns, woodland areas and rock gardens. Left undisturbed in sun or light shade, Glory of the Snow often self-sows, eventually forming a dense carpet of blooms. Foraging animals generally avoid them. Available from Colorblends.com, a Connecticut-based flower bulb wholesaler that sells direct to landscape professionals and home gardeners coast-to-coast with a $60 minimum.
