

Flawless Transitional Combo.

Flawless Transitional Combo. A beautiful plant partnership at the Conservatory Garden in Central Park of New York City caught the eye of garden designer Janie McCabe. "This combo maximizes the transition from late spring into summer, with a layering of texture and color that feels flawless to me," says the Northford, Connecticut designer. The Conservancy design features reddish-purple Allium 'Purple Sensation'; fuchsia Gladiolus byzantinus'; grassy Hakonechloa; white-flowered Aruncus; blue Salvia in the foreground. To the rear, a smoke tree's dark foliage creates a backdrop that sets off the whole scene. For more on combining spring bulbs and perennials, visit BulbDesignNotes.com, a collaborative garden design project sponsored by Colorblends.com.

2848 x 4288

Please Credit: MJ McCabe Garden Design/Colorblends

Copyright-free for editorial and educational use. All other rights reserved, MJ McCabe Garden Design