

Red Crown Imperial, Fritillaria imperialis Rubra Maxima

Red Crown Imperial (Fritillaria imperialis 'Rubra Maxima') is a majestic bulb plant that stands three feet tall. Its single sturdy stem is topped by a circular cluster of orange-red flowers under a tuft of leaves that recalls a punk haircut. It blooms in early-mid spring. Crown Imperials look best planted in clusters. Plant them in full sun or light shade. Foraging animals generally avoid them. Not recommended for planting in the south. Available from Colorblends.com, a Connecticut-based flower bulb wholesaler that sells direct to landscape professionals and home gardeners coast-to-coast with a $60 minimum.
